

BLACK HEARD BY GOOD AUDIENCE

Favorite in Governorship Race Declares Against Repeal of Tax Law But For Amending It.

Madison county's undoubted favorite for the Democratic nomination for Governor, Gov. James D. Black, spoke to a large and enthusiastic gathering of voters here Saturday afternoon in opening his speaking campaign for the nomination which will be made August 2, next.

The county court room was filled to capacity with democrats from Madison and number of adjoining counties, who came to hear Gov. Black state his position on issue which are before the people of Kentucky today. The consensus of opinion of nearly all who were here was that Gov. Black has his race for the nomination won. What he had to say was listened to carefully, and his ideas on several points were loudly applauded. His reference to the defects in the present dog tax law, made quite a hit, and his eulogy to the memory of the late Gov. James B. McCreary, in closing, was beautiful and appreciated by all.

Judge G. Murray Smith introduced Gov. Black in a few well chosen phrases, referring to him as the man who had undoubtedly saved the ticket for defeat in 1915.

Gov. Black's references to the new tax law were listened to carefully. He declared that he favors amendments to the law to remedy its defects rather than repeal it.

He asserted that rigid economy in the State's Government undoubtedly would bring about a reduction in taxes required for the support of the State and pledged himself to see that State affairs are managed on a frugal basis.

Gov. Black found fault with the plan outlined by Judge John D. Carroll regarding Kentucky's system of taxation. Judge Carroll advocated elimination of real estate from taxation for State purposes, proposing that the State derive its revenue from taxation of corporations and intangible property only, and that real estate be assessed for city and county taxes only; he would relieve corporations and intangible property of city and county taxes.

In the opinion of Gov. Black this plan would not prove satisfactory. He contended that all kinds of property should pay State taxes. Some counties, he declared, could not support schools properly without State aid, and this aid could not be given by the State unless it derived revenue from the taxation of real estate.

Gov. Black expressed the belief that money in bank, for instance, might be assessed at a little more than at present.

He declared emphatically against the employment of extra attorneys to do the work that he said should be assistants and said, if the next Attorney General were not able to do the work of the office with assistance allowed by law, he would ask his resignation and appoint a man in his place who could do it.

Gov. Black gave a strong endorsement to the nation and State-wide prohibition or war-time proof of its pointed out that it did not require the same popular trend toward prohibition of war-time profit to its goods results to make an eleven-hour convert of him to the cause.

He declared that his ambition of over twenty years would be fully satisfied by election to the Governorship.

Touching the school book question he said he is opposed to frequent changes in books, and that schools should receive a portion of inheritance tax.

He favored a non-partisan administration of the schools and also a non-partisan judiciary.

Gov. Black said he had felt that effect of politics in the conduct of the State's charitable institutions, and declared that no political "pull" should be allowed consideration. He said that he knew that the minute he assumed Governorship next Monday he would be beset for pardons, but that his faith in the legal ability and fairness in the judges is so strong as to create the belief that not many people are unjustly convicted of crime. His comment on the dog law was vigorously applauded, when he asserted that the new law needs correction and that too much of the fund now raised is used in execution of the law.

Gov. Black's remarks on the taxation question, and his closing tribute to the memory of Gov. James B. McCreary were in full as follows:

The New Tax Law.
Prior to the 1915 amendment to the State Constitution, the Constitution provided that taxes shall be uniform upon all property subject to taxation, and the property assessed at its fair cash value estimated at the price it would bring at a fair voluntary sale, and that an annual tax sufficient to defray the estimated expenses of the Commonwealth should be provided for each fiscal year. But the General Assembly was by another provision of the Constitution, authorized to contract debts to meet casual deficits or failures in the revenue, and in the aggregate $500,000. The intent of that provision was, I think, to avoid permitting the state becoming indebted beyond the sum of $500,000, and as a check and stay on extravagant and useless expenditures, and if that provision had been lived up to, the state would not be indebted nearly so much as it is.

But in 1915 the Legislature was empowered by amendment to section 17 of the Constitution to divide property into classes and to determine what class or classes shall be subject to local taxation, and that taxation shall be uniform upon all property of the same class subject to taxation.

Subscriptions Amounting To $5,881 Are Made On Opening Day of Great Centenary Drive Here Sunday.

Richmond Methodists are responding generously and loyally to the Centenary drive. The result of the first day's work Sunday is shown by the reports from the five teams as follows: Team No. 1—W. C. Park—$1,650.00; Team No. 2—A. J. Sult—$500.00; Team No. 3—Miss Olatunde—$1,160.00; Team No. 4—Mrs. J. T. Rucker—$775.00.

Total $5,881.00. The drive began at noon Sunday and the report from the five teams at 8 p. m. last night showed $5,881.00. The $5,881.00 the church was assessed, leaving only $619.00 to go over the top. The all-around drive over the market, today as there are many important members they have not yet seen. Another report will be made tonight after Miss Ruth Annette Harding's recital which is the last number in the Methodist lecture course. We cordially invite all members and friends of the church to attend the recital and hear the report. Word from Captain Massey, at Danville, Ky., at 10 o'clock last night showed that every church in the Danville district had gone over the top except Richmond and Lancaster and these two points were only a few hundred dollars behind the goal. He further stated that indications were good for sixty million in the 8 days drive. Danville's quota of $5,000 was raised by the close of the drive and they are now 55 per cent over the goal.

G. D. SMITH, Lay Leader.

SOLDIER BOYS' MINSTRELS COMING

Uncle Sam's own soldier boy minstrels will be in Richmond 25 strong next Saturday May 24, when they will give their famous minstrel performance. Everyone of these boys fought in the war; they have laid down their guns and now coming to cheer the homefolks with their big fun show. It must not be intimated that just because these are battle-scarred heroes that they cannot entertain, for many of these boys were ranked among the best in the theatrical world prior to their enlistment. In every one of the cities that the boys have thus far visited, they have met with big success, and in almost every instance hundreds have turned away unable to secure seats. It is certain that everyone in this city will want to see these distinguished soldiers.

Based on this estimate on the 1918 assessment, the burden of the tax on the schools of the county will increase their burden near $4,000 annually, based on same old assessment. The tax on the schools will increase, and thus make the burden of taxation not too heavy on any one.

Another thing, the new law has brought to light the fact that the tangible property which heretofore escaped taxation. That is due, very largely, to the low rate of taxation placed upon that class of property. But I am not ready to subscribe to the statement that the said low rate of taxation had all to do with it. I am of the opinion that the tax on the tangible property of the county tax Commissioners. It is a well known fact that many County Assessors were very careless in the valuation of property.

Now, I think money on deposit in banks on the first day of July ought to be taxed a little higher than the ten cent rate now in effect. The tax on that excess should go to the counties and towns to aid in their support. I think also that the intangibles now paying the ten cent rate and that to the state only can bear, without injury, a small rate to help the subdivisions of the state and that this increase must not burden any class of property.

Tribute to McCreary

I fear I have taken too much of your time, but I shall in my first term more fully elaborate some of the matters to which I have, in this speech, called your attention. But, before I do, I want to say a few words to me and I must heed his voice a moment. In yonder nearby burial ground, of so much hallowed dust over which we have just passed, lies in restful silence all that was mortal of James B. McCreary, neighbor to many others there and to you, once Speaker of the Lower House of the Kentucky General Assembly, then Governor of Kentucky, member of both Houses of the Federal Congress, the boldest of the Lower House of the Kentucky General Assembly, having defeated at the polls the Republican nominee in a legislative district having an adverse normal political majority reaching into the thousands and a fair share of the honor of the defeat of the Republican nominee in the gubernatorial election of 1915. It is to you that I utter this feeble tribute to his memory, and convey, in this public way, my unending appreciation for that noble leadership of the people in this good county gave me in 1915 in the race for the nomination for Lieutenant Governor.

A NERVOUS BREAKDOWN

Miss Kelly Tells How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Restored Her Health.

Newark, N. J.—"For about three years I suffered from nervous breakdown and got so weak I could hardly stand, and had headaches every day. I tried everything I could think of and was under a physician's care for two years. A girl friend had used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and she told me about it. From the first day I took it I began to feel better and now I am well and able to do most any kind of work. I have been recommending the Compound ever since and give you my permission to publish this letter."—Miss FLO KELLY, 476 So. 14th St., Newark, N. J.

The reason this famous root and herb remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, was so successful in Miss Kelly's case was because it went to the root of her trouble, restored her to a normal healthy condition and as a result her nervousness disappeared.

McCombs Road Oil

"From the time of the Roman Caesars it has been recognized that prosperity follows good roads."

THE high cost of material and the shortage of labor put a premium upon the preservation of present equipment; and for the preservation of good roads a gallon of oil is worth a bushel of labor.

Imperative demands of the war period have prevented adequate road maintenance, improvement and extension. The immense transportation problem of reconstruction requires that the arteries of traffic be kept in good condition.

Roads well oiled last indefinitely. A well-oiled road is impervious to the destructive forces of nature and offers adequate resistance to the wear and tear of heavy traffic.

the Richmond high school. Sunday,
May 11th, the baccalaureate sermon work hard. Prof. J. S. Hathaway and his able helpers are doing a great work for the city of Richmond with a percentage of .475, has to his credit eight runs, twenty nine
